least, they can repair to their tents and enjoy a truce.

The Cabinet session this morning was prolonged from ten until three P. M. The recent performance of the sloop of war Cyane engaged no small share of the attention of the conclave, and as the Secretary of State had nothing in particular to suggest on the subject, it was understood that the future consideration of New York appointments in general be postponed for a couple of weeks, to enable the Secretary to take a quiet pinch of snuff, and open, for the first time, the portfolio of foreign affairs, which are supposed to form the particular business of his deential circles as Minister to Constantinople. He is the foremost man in the Young America wing of the democracy, who consider the appointment of Dudly Mann, un-der Secretary of State, a prelude to more good things of ministration was not inclined to be soft shell, in its foreign policy at all events. Ohio expects to take a hand if the policy of the cablnet is of the progressive sort.

A number of Southern appointments were agreed upon in the cabinet to day; but the rumors of what was done are so contradictory that they are not worth repetition. It will be some time before the members of the cabinet

It will be some time before the members of the capinet return to New York—they do not like the locality.

The politicians have been not a little puzzled to discover some plausible reason for the selection of Mr. Marcy for the cabinet, in view of the fact that the party in Nor. York were divided between Messrs. Dickinson and Dix, appointments for your city, and it is time it was known. It appears to have been this :- Gen. Pierce was not at all pleased with the silence of Gen. Scott, while the Coombs pleased with the shence of ten. scott, while the Coomos the Joneses, the Stanleys, etc., were tearing off the military buttons and treading on the laurels of the democratic candidate, and that he felt especially indignant because General Scott did not, in one of his many orations, while in pursuit of that hospital out West, repel, with the chivalry of a soldier, the ungenerous doubts thrown by the whig campaigners on the personal courage of Gen. Pierce. In this meod Gen. Pierce set about the formation of his cabinet, and in the glow and ecstacy of his splendid triumph over Scott, affairs the man, of all others, the object of Scott's hateand so W. L. Marcy, the hero of the hasty plate of soup correspondence, was summoned to take the great seals. The point has been gained—Gen. Pierce has had his rechosen, and whether he remains much longer depends on what turns up next week, at the quiet dinner for House, when the President, and Messrs. Dickinson, Dix and O'Cenor will tell on the future and the next move.

In the Gardner case the day was principally occupied in an argument upon admitting the testimony of Mr. Partridge respecting the genuineness of the signatures upon the mining title and accompanying deposition. The vidence was mestly ruled out.

Commander Stephen Rowan, of the United States Navy, estified to having seen Dr. Gardner in May or June, 1846. in the port of Mazatlan, on the Pacific. Boston, April 2, 1853. Letters received in this city, dated Honduras, March 1, say:—"War is now openly declared between the States of Guatemala and Honduras. The latest news states that one hundred and fifty men of Honduras have beaten five hundred of Carrera's troops. It is said that the inha-bitants of that State dislike this man, who has taken the whole power into his hands. If such is the case, it is ex-jected that Honduras will be entirely triumphant and bring a speedy close to this exterminating war.

This is the first vessel that has arvived from that port since February 26th. The Buenos Ayres Packet, received by her, is filled with articles to keep up the courage and induce the Buenos Ayreaus to fight to the last against Urquiza. The Custom House was open from 8 to 12 each day, and some produce was accumulating.

THE AMENDMENT OF THE CONSTITUTION.

The Senate proceeded to consider the special order, being Mr. Vanderbilt's resolution for the amendment of the constitution.

Mr. VANDEBERT (dem.) resumed his remarks. He introduced extracts from the Allos to prove that it had repeatedly urged such an amendment of the constitution as that which he (Mr. V.) and his friends now contended. He claimed that his plan had met with a cheerful response on the part of the people, while the tax bill of the minerity, so oppressive to the clingens, was attracting attention, and was about meeting wifn the just indignation of the people of this State. The people are speaking through the press. Even presses of the particular stripe of the Senators from the Third and Teath begin to declaim against it; and kere Mr. V. quoted from the Eccaning Pest, an authority which he supposed would go at once to the hearts of the Senators from the Third and Teath Mr. V. alluded to Senator Fierce's item in his exhibit of the revenues under the tax and toll bill of the amount to be derived from the "economical administration of the canal."

be derived from the "cconomical administration of the canal."

Mr. Dayenfort (dem.)—Very much needed.

Mr. Vanderburt said he did not doubt that. He then passed on to comment on the action of the Canal Board—a board compresed of a majority of the friends of the Secator from the Tenth, and who are reponsible for its action. That Board has within the last few days determined not to change the rates of tolls, and the Lieutenant Governor voted in that way.

Mr. CONGER (dem.) (the Lieutenant Governor occupying a seat near him) suggested that Mr. V. was mistaken in respect to the vote—and after some conversation with the Lieutenant Governor, Mr. C. read a written memorandum of the vote in the Canal Board, on the subject of raising the tells, which showed that the vote for raising the tells, which showed the vote for the Boston, April 2, 1858.

The Captain of the schooner Agate, from Jeremie, reorts that Charles Bishop, Wesleyan Missionary at Jersmie, while on his way on horseback, with a boy, from Aux Cayes, was attacked near what is called Devil's Hele, by a band of robbers, who knocked him down, robbed him of his porte monnaic, and left him insensible upon the field. through the throng of beauty and loveliness that obstructs the pave between the carriage steps and the doorway of the modist. The exhibition of these spring styles of Paris bennets is always a great event in the fashionable circles here, you know; for it always inaugurates "the fashions" that is to be for the coming six months, so far as that important article of female apparel is concerned. Some of them I have seen are very expensive, but of course very beautiful. The prices range from $15$ to $39$, on the average, but I hear of instances of as high as $45$ being paid. These Paris bonnets are not, at first, for sale in the atores—only being had in back parlors of private dwellings hired for the purpose. This, I suppose, is to invest them with a more theroughly aristocratic air than that which is supposed to permeate the vulgar shop, and, by consequence, to give the importer an additional pretext for asking on all, the more exorbitant price. It takes about aix weeks to bring into general fashion the styles first introduced into these bonnet parlors, and then, after they have flaunted along the exclusive precincts of University Place and the Pitth avenue some six weeks more, they are obliged to surrender to the incoming importations for summer. But, long after they are voted vulgar "bove Bleecker," they are worn, with as much grace as ever, by the factory girl that carns her daily bread in Nassau or Chatham street. The special advantage the latter has over the former, in cases like this, moreover, is a substantial one; for while the former is obliged to surpay $30 for one of these bonnets, when they first come out as the spring styles, the latter, by waiting a few weeks, can obtain them for one sixth the price. If is worth something, of course, to be in the fashion, if you live in a great city; "but, then," argues the poor paper-folder, exchange the type rubber, or the wool-picker, "what's the odds, as long as you're 'appy?"
